LACOMBE BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUBS

The Provincial Government, under the Agricultural Branch, have a very complete program among the boys' and girls' live stock clubs of the Province.

The plan is to organize the farm young people into groups, each group selecting some particular kind of livestock with the idea of caring for, raising, and disposing of same.

The general idea is to interest the boys and girls in this phase of farming.

The Central Alberta Shorthorn Breeders' Association sponsored a beef calf club and some fifteen boys and girls are selecting calves this fall for feeding this winter, and hope to have some finished at the time of the Lacombe bull sale.

During the past summer these club members have been receiving instruction in judging and along general live stock lines. At a contest held this fall, Thomas Blacklands and William Laing secured the highest standing in the local club and on November 1, will represent the Lacombe club at Edmonton in a final contest, open to all clubs to secure the highest standing team in the Province.

The final champions will then represent Alberta at the Royal Show at Toronto, where they come in competition with teams from all provinces, for the Dominion Championship. It is no small honour to these two boys to have won their way to the Provincial contest.

A similar club interested in swine has also been organized in the Lacombe District. In addition to raising a special pair of pigs for competition in the fall, the young farmers raise an additional number with the idea of selling a complete yearling.

Instruction also is given to these boys and girls along swine lines as well, they receive instruction in judging. In the Lacombe finals, Virgil Blackmore and Donald Gibbons provided to be the best judges, and will represent the swine club in the finals at Edmonton, where they also will compete for a trip to Toronto.

On Thursday, October 26, the Swine Club shipped their car of hogs and also exhibited their pairs of swine, for the special cash prizes donated by the Department of Agriculture for swine.

In this competition the following is the placing of the pairs: 1st, Virgil Blackmore; 2nd, Dale Blackmore; 3rd, Robert Crawford; 4th, Jack Darnoch; 5th, John Morrison; 6th, Virgil Blackmore; 7th, V. Henderson; 8th, D. Boulter; 9th, Roy Henderson; 10th, Chas. Blackmore; 11th, Norman Morrison.

These members also contributed eighty-six hogs for a full car of 17,200 pounds, which bacon received a special premium of thirty cents per hundred above the market, or 4.65c per pound for local weight and grade.

In the car were twenty-five selected and thirty-one bacon, which gave 167 pounds and bacon in the car. This is considerably better than average. Both clubs are hoping that their representatives may do well at the Edmonton contest. It is certainly a very creditable thing to have gone as far as the Provincial finals.

Mr. H. E. Wilson of the Lacombe Experimental station has been the energetic local leader for both clubs, and M. J. Elliott, District Supervisor, has also assisted in the training and development of the teams. McKean Bros. purchased the hogs for the Swift Canadian Company, Ltd.

Both clubs are looking for an increased membership for next year, and any boy or girl between ten and twenty years of age is eligible. Those desiring to join either club should apply to H. E. Wilson of the Lacombe Experimental Station. The feeding of calves for this winter will very soon be under way. Special instructions are being sent out as suggestions for the feeding of calves, as it is hoped to have them finished at the time of the bull sale.

THE WORLD WHEAT AGREEMENT

The World Wheat Agreement concluded in London in August is the first definite plan covering the production of an agricultural commodity to receive the approval of exporting and importing countries representing substantially all the world trade in the commodity. It is a notable attempt to achieve planned economy; it marks a new stage in the development of international economic co-operation. The Royal Bank of Canada.

THE BENEFIT DANCE

Again arrangements were under way for the grand annual relief dance to be held in the Adelphi Hotel on December 15th. Tickets will be on sale soon and ticket sales will be busy.

Last year over $200 was turned over to the Central Relief Committee here for distribution and many needy families in Lacombe and district benefited greatly through this money. Every person who is able to do so should help this worthy cause along, and remember, every cent will be given to the Relief Committee. A. T. Insip and the Staff of the Adelphi Hotel have guaranteed the expenses of the dance and The Western Globe and Halpin Quick Print have donated all advertising and printing in connection with the dance.

Bob Paulsen and his Dance Band have donated their services, so that every cent made will be turned over to help the needy families in town and district. Names of everyone buying tickets will be published, as was the case last year, so that people sending in money or purchasing tickets can always see how the fund is progressing week by week.

The sponsor of this big event will put forth every effort to make the dance this year even greater than last year's, and ask the co-operation and support of everyone in the district. Remember, by buying a ticket at 50c, you are helping someone in poorer circumstances than yourself, and at a time when that little bit of extra things are most appreciated—at Christmas Time.

CURLING MEETING

The annual meeting of the Lacombe Curling Club was held on Monday evening, Oct. 30th. Election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, John Gilmour, First Vice-President, P. W. Pratt; Second Vice-President, A. Bekker; Secretary, Treasurer, C. E. Todd; Executive, A. M. Campbell, J. B. Chapman, J. B. McCormack, W. Sage and J. H. Jamison; Draw Committee, A. Bekker, J. Gilmour; P. W. Pratt and C. E. Todd; Ice Committee, W. Sage and J. H. Jamison. Dues for beginners are to be $5.00 and for previous curlers $10.00.

Dues for Ladies Curlers are to be decided by the Executive. Formation of rinks is to be carried out along the same lines as last year, and it is requested that Skips bringing in full rinks will please hand the names to the Secretary.

It was decided to hold an open Bonspiel early in January, as close to the 9th as possible, arrangements being left to the following committee, G. T. Jackson, P. W. Pratt, A. Bekker, W. Sage and C. E. Todd. The hiring of a new caretaker, to take the place of W. Newton, who for the past several years had served the Club very efficiently in this capacity, was left with the Executive. Retiring President, Mr. Jackson, expressed his appreciation of the co-operation of the various officers and committees during his term as President, and Mr. Gilmour upon assuming the Chair, voiced the pleasure of the Club over the harmonious relations which had existed during the capable leadership of Mr. Jackson.

ANSWERS CRITICISM

Lacombe, Oct. 20, 1933

Western Globe, Lacombe, Alta.

Dear Sirs:

Would you be so kind as to publish this note in your next issue.

I have heard little or nothing about the school of the hour at which our School Party of last Friday evening broke up. I would like to generally know that the building was cleared at not later than 12:00 o'clock, and that the last dance was called at 11:30 and lasted not more than 30 minutes. If, sir, that is considered a late hour in this town, or at least it is considered so late that people are justified in offering damaging criticism of a school or teachers when such a thing is allowed, I submit that some of the parents here must have a rather interesting time explaining the wretched hours of 12:00, 12:30 or even 1:30, (I'll be mild), which they kept at their parties.

If, however, it so happens that some children did not arrive within a reasonable time after the hour above stated, and parents are anxious to know the above facts, or any related to them, I who am ready to take full responsibility for the party am only too anxious to co-operate.

Yours very faithfully,

C. M. Lavery, Principal P.S.—I would not want or expect my responsibility to extend beyond the school grounds.

EDMONTON MALE CHORUS CONCERT

Music lovers of Lacombe will be offered a rare treat when the Edmonton Male Chorus of 48 voices sings in St. Andrew's United Church on Saturday, November 11th. This chorus is one of the finest in Canada, and in the opinion of some authorities at the Musical Festivals equal to any in Great Britain.

W. J. Hendra is conductor of the Male Chorus, and the Accompanist is I. E. Williams. In bringing this organization to Lacombe the Choir of St. Andrew's United Church feels that it is offering something which should be appreciated to the fullest extent by the people of this district, and they hope that every one who can possibly do so will make an effort to hear this exceptional chorus.

The admission to the concert is reasonable, and the tickets can be obtained from any member of the choir or at the door of the church for 50c for adults, and 25c for children.

DESTROYING BLOT MACHINES

In future slot-machine cases in the Calgary court, police will ask for the confiscation and destruction of all machines where the dealers have been convicted, it was learned Friday.

A local Chinese, who was fined $10 and costs Thursday afternoon, lost his machine. Police are not anxious to have the dealers heavily fined, but feel that the confiscation and destruction of the machines will put a stop to the alleged "racket" they stated.

ASK CHANGE IN LICENSE YEAR

In an effort to have the Alberta government declare the auto license year to be from April 1 to March 31, instead of from January 1 to December 31, as at present, the Alberta Motor Association will shortly send all over Alberta copies of a petition to be presented to Hon. W. L. Walsh, Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta.

Decision to circulate the petition was made Wednesday afternoon by the board of directors of the association at the regular meeting, following attempts to bring the matter before the legislature.

HON. STEVENS CHAMPIONS FARMER

WINNIPEG, Oct. 26—Unless meat packers and other interests dealing in farm products take action to raise the price the farmer receives, the government will have to step in and do it for them, Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, told the Winnipeg Board of Trade today.

The same thing, he said, applied to insurance and loan companies holding farm mortgages at interest rates the farmer was unable to pay.

"It will be asked," said Mr. Stevens, "why does the government do this. There are several reasons, some of them constitutional. But I may tell you, I stand for a system of economics where private enterprise and individual capacity can find a maximum of expression.

"But if private enterprise fails to find a solution, the government may have to step in and find it for them. The government is not the best agency for determining the price of goods."

Beef, butter and eggs, Mr. Stevens said, were consumed almost entirely within Canada. The prices of these commodities, unlike wheat, could be raised if business men got together. Choice steers were now bringing $3 to $3.50, a ridiculous price. Mortgage companies, also, he said, would have to get together and reduce interest rates and extend time. Farmers could not pay 8 and 10 per cent.

OPEN MENTAL HOSPITAL

Re-modeling of the Clareholm agricultural school into a branch of the Pointe St. Charles hospital for use of female patients has been completed and transfer of the patients has started, according to Hon. George Hoodley, minister of agriculture and health. Alberta now has 1900 mental patients in the institutions.

THREE BUS PASSENGERS KILLED, 3 INJURED

Calgary, Oct. 30—Three passengers in a Calgary-bound bus were killed in accident north of High River Sunday evening.

The dead were: Mrs. Margaret Robertson, Crossfield; Jack Porter, Lethbridge and Mrs. Larkum, Nanton.

Three were seriously injured—Mrs. J. J. Tighe, Calgary; Miss Lois Williamson, Ogden, and a man believed to be named Callard, Calgary.

The bus was in collision with a truck laden with pipe. The heavy casing tore through the right hand side of the bus, apparently just clearing the tops of the seats. Mrs. Robertson sustained injuries from which she died almost instantly. Porter and Mrs. Larkum were killed instantly.

The complement of passengers was largely made up of members of a Catholic women's organization who had been attending a convention at Blackfoot.

WANT TWINE FIRST CHARGE

Consolidating opinions in action, board of directors of the Retail Merchants' Association, at the first meeting in a two-day meeting in the Palliser Hotel, Wednesday last decided to request the government to make binder twine mortgages first charges upon crops.

Under the Binder Twine Securities Act, effective this year, merchants may take mortgages on crops in order to supply binder twine to farmers. At the present time taxes and threshers' liens take priority.

It was felt that binder twine notes should be a first charge on the proceeds of the crop, as without binder twine the crop could not be harvested. Representation to this effect, in order that merchants may be protected, will be made to the government as a result of Wednesday's action.

FARM WANTED TO RENT

Wanted to rent good improved 1-1 or 1-2 section buildings in fair condition. Three year contract on crop share basis with option of buying. P. R. Walker, Lacombe.

SEVERE LOSS TO PROHIBITION PARTY

In an outstanding lifetime of battling against what he termed the "evil traffic," the late H. H. Hull of Edmonton experienced in full the emotional victory and the dregs of defeat. In both he maintained an unwavering and vigorous confidence in his cause.

During many years as secretary of the Alberta Prohibition Association he at all times was a driving force and leader in the organization. It fell to his lot to be at the executive helm when provincial prohibition, which he actively helped to bring about in 1916, was wrecked on the rocks of a changed public opinion in 1923.

He did not adopt a policy of lamentation over the lost ground. Instead he began the more energetically to keep prohibition lines intact and interest alive.

Only a few days before his death he paid a visit to Calgary and other southern points and manifested a keenness in his work that led his friends to believe he had many years of forceful service still ahead.

Mr. Hull was a veteran newspaperman and a prominent business man. He devoted his entire time to prohibition work. He was a pioneer in the west and from the first had an abiding faith in its future. In his death Alberta loses a champion of the first rank, and prohibition forces a leader whose place will be hard to fill.

BEWARE OF THE CAT

Not only are dogs prohibited from running at large in the Banff National Park outside the town of Banff limits but the war against domestic animals has been extended (or rather renewed) again in the cat.

Two keep a cat in Banff costs the owner a five dollar license and a permit in addition.

These steps are taken for the protection of wild life in the precincts of the great mountain park, where are concentrated in the mountain park system. How effective they have been must be obvious to the visitor who can find every species of animal and bird life wandering at liberty without any apparent suspicion of overman production.

No doubt the good bourgeois of Banff are wondering whether a sufficient revenue could not be produced and wild life at the same time be protected for a longer term. After all the range of relief operations is of small radius. The cat does not prey upon the elk or the antelope or the bear. The only reason for the number of cats in Banff is the corresponding number of mice which raises the question of whether mice are game within the meaning of the regulations.

Whether the common or pantry raiding mouse is intended to be protected along with the buffalo and the mountain lion.

OBITUARY

The death of Mrs. Rachel Cowman, came as a severe blow to her friends who were stricken with heart trouble but seemed to be improving when she was called home, Oct. 18, 1933.

Deceased was born Nov. 25, 1857 at Mt. Airy, Ohio, and lived in the United States until 21 years ago, then came to Canada with her husband who predeceased her 20 years ago.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. M. O. Munroe and three grandchildren, one great grandchild of Lacombe, Alta. and two others and one brother of Cincinnati, Ohio.

The funeral services were held in Fairview Church, Friday, Oct. 20, conducted by Rev. Hayes, the remains being laid away beside her husband in the Lacombe Cemetery.

ATTORNEY GENERAL APPEALS

Attorney-General of Alberta, Wednesday intervened in a divorce case in which Court of Appeal held that consent of parents was unnecessary on marriages between minors, and gave notice of motion for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court by making the decision held that the marriage of two parties, under the age of 21 years, without consent of their parents, could not be annulled on the plea that there was no consent.

BODY IS FOUND IN RAILWAY CAR

Edmonton, Oct. 29—The body of an unidentified man, believed to be a transient who was found on Sunday in the cab of a dead-head Canadian National Railway engine at the Calder yards. The engine had been brought dead-head from Walther and was checked before leaving that point, and it is believed the body was placed in the cab between Walther and Tofield.

Post play is suspected. Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating.

POWLETT AWARDED $56,860 DAMAGES

Edmonton, Oct. 30—I have no hesitation whatever in finding, as I do find, that the mental illness of the infant plaintiff was caused by the proceedings of initiation to which he was subjected," declares Mr. Justice Ives, in his 14-page judgment awarding C. H. A. Powlett and Charles J. Powlett $56,860 damages against the University of Alberta, a copy of which was received Sunday. Charles J. A. Powlett, the youth in question, sued the university, its governors and its senate, together with his father, claiming he became insane through initiation proceedings in 1922.

BAN ON SHIPPING WHEAT FROM NORTH DAKOTA

North Dakota, leading wheat producing State, is under an embargo prohibiting shipments of wheat beyond its boundaries. Governor Langer took this action on Monday to call the plight of the North-west farmer to the attention of the nation.

"Wheat brought 53c a bushel in Grand Forks on Saturday," which means ruin to many of our people," the governor said. North Dakota produced 62,695,000 bushels of wheat this year, 15,295,000 bushels being Durum and 47,400,000 hard spring wheat. Seventy per cent is still in farmers' hands.

Ease Pain, Headache in Few Minutes

For Quick Relief Say ASPIRIN—When You Buy

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia... the fastest relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which an Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking the illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. An Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And this is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, should be on guard against substitutes. To be sure you get ASPIRIN's quick relief, be sure the name BAYER is in the form of a cross on every tablet of Aspirin.

A Time For Thought

Winter approaches and the year progresses steadily to its close. The major activities of this great western agricultural land are rapidly being completed for another season. The hours of daylight are becoming fewer, the days shorter, and the evenings and hours of darkness longer. As nature works out its annual changes, man, too, alters the routine of his life. As his activities on the land become lighter, he rises later in the morning and retires to rest later in the evening. And he employs those evening hours in ways not possible to him when physically tired out from a long day's labor in the fields.

In the late Fall and Winter months thousands of people in Western Canada devote themselves to reading, to forms of recreation, to community gatherings, which are not possible during the strenuous months of plowing, seeding, harvesting and threshing. The Fall and Winter becomes the time for self-improvement, for checking up on oneself, for planning for the future.

Possibly, because of the very nature of the times through which the world is now passing, with a multitude of, as yet, unsolved problems; because of difficulties to be overcome which are taxing the resourcefulness and testing the courage of everybody; because of the danger of feelings of despair overcoming hopefulness and faith—because of such a world condition it is probable that people will do even more thinking and study than in times past.

Unquestionably people are thinking, perhaps as they never thought before. Admittedly, there is much loose thinking, reckless thinking, by some. There are others who, perhaps, imagine they are doing some real thinking but who, in reality, are allowing others to think for them and are merely adopting the thinking of others. But many others, probably the vast majority of people, are thinking for themselves, thinking seriously, and earnestly studying, and will continue to do so in even more earnest, serious fashion during the next few months.

Few investments, says one writer, are so sure and profitable as the effort to equip oneself in the four fundamental accomplishments:

1. How to think accurately and comprehensively.
2. How to express thought in talking and writing.
3. How to work skilfully with the hands.
4. How to take one's place among men.

The next four or five months will provide a golden opportunity for many of us to make such investments. As we read a newspaper, magazine or book, and obtain entertainment therefrom, the opportunity is likewise ours to think out for ourselves the wisdom or foolishness of the thought expressed or ideas advanced by the writer for the time being engaging our attention. It is an opportunity to test the accuracy and comprehensiveness of our own thinking.

Or, as we listen to some speaker over the radio, to an eminent clergyman, a man well known in public life, an outstanding figure in the financial or industrial world, a great scientist, inventor, traveller, author, or social worker, and as we glean information, and hear definite opinions advanced, we, of course, advance our knowledge and are entertained. But we will have missed a real opportunity for self-advancement if, at the same time, we fail to ponder over and analyze what we hear, and bring our own thinking apparatus into full play, and apply the test of our own serious, concentrated thought, to the views expressed and the ideas advanced.

It is well to be a good listener, a consistent reader, but it is better to be a student. Let us absorb from others, in that way information is gained and knowledge advanced. But let us be something more than a sponge which merely absorbs. Let us train ourselves to sift the truth from the false; the good from the evil; that which is strong from that which is weak; selecting that which is constructive from that which is purely destructive.

There is much to criticize these days, and destructive criticism is about the easiest thing in which any person can indulge. But there is also much to commend and applaud. War with all its horrors and suffering is to be condemned—condemned as the peoples of the world have not yet seen fit to condemn it—but even in the days of war there was nevertheless developed attributes of character of the finest and noblest type. The present economic depression is a world tragedy. Its evils must be mitigated, and a repetition of it prevented as far as it is humanly possible to prevent something over which man alone has not complete control. But out of the depression there is slowly, but surely, arising a greater conception of man's relations, duties and responsibilities toward his fellow man.

There is a better way of life for every individual, for every community and nation, for the world. It will be brought about, and the new era ushered in, not by some tremendous upheaval, nor by a rapid overthrow of what now is, and the equally rapid substitution of something else, nor by the efforts of any one man, or party, or nation, but by the individual efforts of all combining to one great common end. The man or woman who does his or her own thinking, deep, serious thinking, and who applies their own God-given powers and energies to the particular task which confronts them, will be the real creators of, and leaders in, the new era that is dawning.

Now is the time for every person to fit himself or herself for the great work now at hand and ahead.

Restarted Heart Three Times

Summer Complaint Plays Havoc With the Bowels

Few people escape an attack of summer complaint. It may be slight or it may be severe, but both the young and the old are liable to it. The summer months are a time when the bowels are liable to be affected. You cannot tell when it seizes you how it is going to end. Let it run for a day or two and see how weak and prostrate it will leave you.

On the first sign of an attack of any looseness of the bowels take a few doses of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and see how quickly it will give relief.

London's New-Lighting Scheme

Tenous Buildings Will Be Flood-lighted On Certain Occasions

Canadian visitors to London this winter will find town a much less showy place than they had been led to expect, states Douglas Webster, London Correspondent of the Western Leader-Post. A lighting scheme has been planned and will be carried out this winter which will rid London of its reputation of a city of dark and gloomy places.

The London society has the plans in hand. Its intention is to flood-light certain buildings frequently and especially on such days as have national significance. The cost will be borne privately.

The project was first mooted by the Incorporated Association of Architects and Surveyors some three years ago. Nothing came of it then. Today the London Society has the matter well in hand and it is hoped that the first display of floodlighting under the society's auspices will coincide with the British Industries fair which takes place early in 1934.

Although this floodlighting is designed to boost the industries fair the scheme will not stop there. The Royal Society intends to make it a permanent feature of the London season.

DEPRESSED BY ACUTE ACIDITY

There can surely be no doubt about the effectiveness of a remedy for acidity that can give such permanent relief as this woman's case—

"I suffered for many years from acidity in various forms," she writes. "At last it became so acute that every morning I woke with a gnawing pain and a great depression of spirits. I had been told that the daily dose of Kruschen ever since. That was about five years ago, and the Kruschen does not lose its effect."

Kruschen is so effective with acidity because it neutralizes acid, takes all the toxins out of it, and expels it from the system. And by stimulating your organs of elimination, Kruschen will prevent this harmful acid from ever accumulating again.

Report Col. Fawcett is Alive

British Explorer and His Son, Missing Eight Years, Said To Be Held Prisoners

Reports were received at Rio de Janeiro, that the British explorer, Colonel H. P. Fawcett, and his son, who have been missing eight years, are alive in the jungle.

A despatch from Cuyada, Matto Grosso, to the newspaper "Anote," quoted Arso Bezerra, a planter in Paranaíta, as saying that an Indian woman told him two white men were being held prisoners by Chiriguano Indians in the Xingu district, a 45-day journey from Paranaíta.

Similar reports have not been confirmed.

New Inheritance Law

Jews Cannot Inherit, Sell, Or Divide Farms In Germany

"Privileged" class where Chancellor Hitler signed a revolutionary law inheritance law whereby Jews are not permitted to sell or divide lands among heirs. The law defined an "inheritable" farm as a tract including arable and forest land not exceeding 310 acres and possessed by a capable farmer. The law says: "The farm owner shall henceforth be called a peasant. A peasant must only be a German citizen of German or kindred blood and honorable."

May Build Three Canals

The possibility of the construction of three great canals across the British Isles is mentioned in a recent edition of the Railway Review. Discussing the recent agreement between the railway companies and the Canal association to promote co-ordination and co-operation in rail and canal services, the Journal says: "It may provide a most favorable atmosphere for the scheme to construct three canals across Britain, linking the Atlantic with the North Sea."

New Members Of League

Argentina, Australia and Denmark have been elected to seats on the League of Nations Council. Argentina received 49 votes of 53 cast; Denmark received 52, and Australia, 47. The three were elected for three-year terms as non-permanent members. They succeeded, respectively, Guatemala, Norway and the Irish Free State.

Foresee Maritime Towns Moored in Atlantic

Fore-runner Of Many Others Likely To Blossom In North Sea

A vast uncharted island, fore-runner of many others which will give to the world a new race of island dwellers, is said by a Berlin correspondent likely to rise shortly in the North Sea. A time in the near future has been visualized when there will be maritime towns moored in the middle of the Atlantic and complete with luxury hotels and landing grounds for aircraft. Fast airplane services will be begun from the mainland and in between the island communities aerodromes, with powerful wireless stations, will be built. Then will come the health seekers. Week-enders will discover this new world on their doorsteps. The islands will have their trees, flowers and gardens. The sea will be harnessed to provide electricity, and the wants of the communities will be supplied by cargo carrying aircraft from the mainland.

More Work Under N.R.A.

Expect One Million Or More Have Been Re-Employed

Possibility that the count now being plotted in the United States by the N.R.A. may show re-employment of 1,000,000 or more persons in excess of present estimates is being held out by statisticians to Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

Johnson has calculated that the actual count of homes by direct observation will reach tens of thousands of employers who do not report regularly through ordinary channels and may show that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 persons have found work since the low mark of last winter. The present accepted figures, based largely upon reports to the labor department by industry and upon trade union estimates, run to approximately 2,500,000.

Again Seeking Franchise

Another Attempt Being Made By Women In Quebec

Arrangements whereby a measure seeking the provincial franchise for women in the Province of Quebec will again be completed in the legislature will be completed shortly. It was announced at the opening meeting of the League for Women's Rights in Montreal.

The league will also petition the provincial government to enact legislation requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night, in view of the many cases of loss of life resulting from collisions between automobiles and unlighted wagons.

Worthy Of A Name

New York Agricultural Editor Referred In Named Farms

Any farm that is worth working on, and living on, is worthy of an individual name. And if it has a name, that name should be used in every possible way short of cluttering up the highway with too many signs, he says. Brister Adams, editor of publications of the New York State College of Agriculture. The more the farm is definitely known and identified, the more it is likely that the owner will take pride in it and the more he will bestir himself to see that the farm is favorably known, he says.

"A farm name loses half of its value and much of its real beauty if it has no real meaning," he asserts. "The name should be meaningful and it should be sensible. It may be fanciful, too, but there should be a basis for the fancy. It may even have an element of humor, but it should be remembered that a piece of humor too often repeated ceases to be funny. One farmer named a farm Lumbago because it had a creek in the back."

It is a safe plan to take some natural object as a name source. Some common names are Hillside Farm, Lake View, Stony Ridge, Far View, Inlet Valley, Rock Lodge and the like. But whether the name has a geographic, topographic or historical basis, it is better, in an English-speaking country, to stick to English names. A good old Anglo-Saxon name, combined with either of the English words for farmland, hurst or croft, makes a satisfactory farm name, as Warrentonhurst, or Allencroft.

These two words also combine with a natural object, as Oakhurst or Cedarcroft. Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey wrote his name into that of his farm and called it Ballivick, the place of which he was the bailiff or bailie.

"A farmstead may be labelled with a neatly lettered sign at the entrance gate, generally at one side of the gate, and the sign should have the name of the farm on the top may be too pretentious, and besides, any arch which is high enough to allow for the passage of a load of hay is likely to be too much of a good thing. A farm with a name should have the name on a clearly printed letterhead."

May Be Gunboat

Hulk Found In River Thames Near Chatham, Ontario

Was there a third British gunboat sunk in the River Thames during the war of 1812? So, it is thought, an old hulk, lying in the river bed near Chatham, Ontario, is the remains of the old fighting ship.

It is known that during the 1812 campaign two boats were sent to the bottom at Pikeville. Now it is thought that the third. The remains of the old hulk are just below the surface of the water and was not noticed until recently.

The wood appears to be walnut and the keel is 40 feet long. Historians are being called upon to decide whether or not it is a gunboat.

Would-Be Robbers Frustrated

Tunnel Discovered Between House And Bank In Vancouver

A 45-foot tunnel, presumably constructed by would-be bank robbers, was discovered leading from the basement of a house to the walls of a nearby bank building in Vancouver. The tunnel was found when the tenant of the house called city sewer workers to pump out a hole in the basement. Removal of the wall revealed it. Police found the shaft expertly cribbed and equipped with a small trolley car for dirt removal, led 45 feet to the concrete foundations of the bank building. To reach the bank vault it would have had to go another 45 feet. Dirt was piled in the cellar from the excavation.

Pictures made of pieces of cloth by the work of a Finnish artist, Elma Meri-Kallio. There are landscapes, flower pictures and even a figure subjects, in which scraps of woven stuffs, have been used to produce the effect of flesh painting. Silk, muslins and all kinds of textiles are used and a great deal of patience and skill must have been required in working them into pictures to gain some striking effects which are quite surprising to many of the newest types of oil painting.

Changing His Ways

It was visiting day at the jail and the uplifers were on deck.

"My good man," said one kindly lady, "I hope that since you have come here you have had time for meditation and have decided to correct your faults."

"I have that, mum," replied the prisoner in heartfelt tones. "Believe me, the next job I pull, this baby wears gloves."

Celebrity In His Line

Man In England Has Mastered Art Of Carving

Charles Brown, the head carver at Simpson's-in-the-Strand, who has just completed fifty-five years of service, estimates that he has carved at least 250,000 saddles of mutton in that time.

Famous people, whose names are a legend to the present generation, were his friends. He talks casually of Sir Henry Irving, Jim Macé and Bill Terrie—the last on the night before he was murdered at from a joint carved by Charles—but Charles Dickens, in Charles's words, "used to come here before my time."

During his fifty-five years Charles has collected an armoury of carving knives.

One of the arts of carving—according to Charles Brown, who must be its greatest living expert—is to decorate the plate, "as an artist plans out his picture." The best place should be put in the middle and decorated with the most pleasing places.

It is all wrist work, good carving. Charles feels a pitying contempt for the man who hacks a joint—it is so unnecessary, he says.

In earlier days hostesses were professionally initiated in the art, and instructors thrived. Now, however, carving is for the most part cook-hack-work. There is the story of the host who, in negotiating a goose, deposited it into the lap of a woman guest. "Madam, my bird, I think," he said as he retrieved it at the point of his fork.—London Daily Mirror.

Japan's Activities In Pacific

Writer Claims Japan Intends To Put U.S. Out Of The Picture

"Japan is now definitely and methodically preparing to put the United States out of the west Pacific picture by force, as she did Russia in 1904," said Upton Close, author and lecturer, who passed through Victoria after a trip to Japan and Hawaii.

"When President Roosevelt authorized resumption of building of the United States navy, the Japanese gave up hope of bluffing and persuading the people of the U.S. to withdraw from the Pacific," he said. "Japan now means business."

The author said he was banned from Manchuria because of his criticism of Japanese activities in that state.

"The Japanese people have been propagandized to the point where they will now not permit any ruling clique to abandon the campaign for domination of China and the Pacific," he asserted. It was high time the people of North America ceased to be deluded by Japanese Government officials who declared war with the U.S. was "unthinkable."

Aurora Not Connected With Weather Changes

Opinion Of Leader Of British Polar Year Party

The aurora borealis, so far as known, has no connection with weather changes, Dr. J. M. Stagg, leader of the British polar year party, told interviewers at Winnipeg. Many people have held the belief a display of aurora meant a change in weather. If it appeared during warm weather, they held, lower temperatures would be recorded within a 24-hour period, and its appearance during cold weather would mean the coming of warmer days.

Dr. Stagg's study in the far north, at Fort Rae, North West Territories, failed to confirm this belief. He did find, however, the aurora disrupts land telephone lines, and had a direct effect on short wave radio communications.

Absent-Minded Travellers

Many Queer Articles Found After Passengers Leave Trains

Cinderella and her glass slipper had nothing on a young Winnipeg "clat" to Toronto, who calmly walked out of a sleeping car in her dressing slippers and left her street shoes for the porter to gather up and take into the lost and found department. The episode of this absent-minded lady came to light when she blithely sought out the general baggage agent, and amid great confusion made inquiries for her brogues. They were there, neatly tied up and waiting for her.

The missing shoes were only one package of the 3,450 articles that have been left on trains since New Year's day. The reports showed that during the summer season more than 100 sets of false teeth were left in sleepers and on coaches.

British Delegate At Geneva Stands Firm On Principle Of Protection To All Minorities

With a smashing indictment of the new German conception of racial homogeneity Great Britain outspokenly opposed, at Geneva, the German argument that her treatment of the Jews does not come under the provisions of the rights of minorities.

W. G. A. Omsby-Gore, commissioner of works and British delegate in the political commission of the league, was applauded by the members as he wagged his finger at Dr. Friedrich von Keller, the German delegate, and declared:

"Wherever Jews have been in the course of the centuries, they have been the most loyal and helpful members of the nations. There is among the Jews a sense of historical continuity through their dispersal, and they do not regard minority rights as a privilege but as a duty which they have accepted as a part of their life."

The German argument is the Jews in Germany are neither a racial nor a linguistic minority and therefore the minorities' treaties are not applicable. Dr. von Keller answered the British attack by insisting the league had no competence in the matter; and it was a unique problem demanding special treatment. The Germans also have attacked the whole previous conception of nationalities by the new Hitler idea that a nation is an ethnic whole regardless of whether its members are within or without its frontiers.

The British delegate bluntly rejected this idea and did not mince his words. "If we accept it," he said, "I hesitate to think of the responsibility of any government for all those in the United States who claim descent from the original Pilgrims in the Mayflower." There are about 5,000,000.

Great Britain herself consisted of three main races, the English, the Scottish and the Welsh, and these could be subdivided into many more, he said.

Playing what he called the German thesis that a state has the right to concern itself with the citizens of its race living in other countries he grew increasingly emphatic as he launched into one of the warmest defenses of the parliamentary system developed in an international gathering since the advent of Fascism and Hitlerism.

"Great Britain believes firmly in a parliamentary system in which the minorities can carry their voice to the government and all sides must be heard before laws can be enacted. Likewise Great Britain believes in the freedom of the press."

"We have always set self-government even above good government," he also declared. "Great Britain has never abandoned parliamentarism. The quality of freedom is the only thing that holds Great Britain—it is the free association of free people bound together by real guarantees that protect all minorities all over the world."

"One of the cardinal principles of the British Empire is that no person shall be deprived of the right to hold any post under the crown because of color, race or creed."

Meanwhile a German delegate told the economic commission of the assembly that some Jews had left Germany because of "their bad consciences."

The commission was discussing a Dutch resolution seeking creation of a special organization to aid homes for Jewish refugees, a proposal supported by the French, Spanish, Danish, and Czechoslovakian delegates.

The German said he opposed any discussion of the Jewish question from a political standpoint. President Count de Wiart, of Belgium, began selection of a sub-committee to study the idea, remarking "I suppose that in view of the German attitude Germany prefers not to be represented."

"You are right," the German replied.

Japanese Are Patriotic
Rich and Poor Contribute Toward Military Funds

Military funds in Japan have been greatly expanded by patriotic contributions since the Manchurian trouble began and a large share of the money has come from school children and factory workers. Rich and poor alike have been encouraged to add to local funds for the purchase of guns, tanks, airplanes and other weapons for the army. Hardly a week goes by without a ceremonial presentation of an airplane by the management and workers of some large firm or of a machine gun mortar by the teaching staff and children of some school or a college. Recently several officers and men in the navy gave a month's pay toward national defense.

A Common Occurrence

Suicides From New York's Tall Buildings Are Frequent
High buildings exert a fatal fascination on people whose minds are turned to the idea of self-destruction.

Suicides from tall structures are so common in New York as to be commonplace. In one year 134 people were killed by jumping off high buildings. It was in May, 1929, that for the first time on record a man committed suicide by jumping from the Statue of Liberty, the colossal figure in New York Harbor. The statue was a gift from France to the United States, and was unveiled in 1886. The height from the foundation of the pedestal to the torch is 305 feet. The Eiffel Tower, since it was built 40 years ago, has been the scene of 111 suicides. The tower of the Westminster Cathedral has brought on attacks of "height madness," and a few years ago a mother with two girls aged 7 and 2 were found dead after a fall of 250 feet.

Sodium Sulphate Plant

Refining Plant To Be Erected North Of Maple Creek
Immediate erection of a sodium sulphate refining plant to cost $150,000 at Inglebricht, Lake, 40 miles north of Maple Creek, will be undertaken by the Metallica and Non-Metallica, Limited, of Toronto, it is announced.

The first unit will be in operation within the next two months and will employ approximately 30 men. Ultimately this will be increased by 50 to 60.

The initial construction work which entails the expenditure of $150,000 will be for the construction of a single unit utilizing an air expansion drying system. Ultimately the firm expects to enlarge their plant facilities to in excess of $1,000,000.

According to U. T. Bartram, of Toronto, the sulphate deposits at Inglebricht Lake are the largest property in the world, having 98.6 per cent. pure sodium.

Eggs For Great Britain

Prospects Good For Canada's Best Exporting Year Since 1926

With the export season for eggs approaching preparations are now getting under way for what promises to be perhaps the heaviest exporting year for Canada since 1926.

During the fiscal year 1926-27 exports of eggs from the Dominion totalled 1,730,849 dozen. Since that year, however, the annual exports have only once exceeded the million dozen mark, being 1,168,835 dozen in the fiscal year 1929-30. From present indications it appears that exports this year will be probably well over the million dozen mark.

The revival in exports of eggs this year brings a turn in the steady decline in exports of eggs from Canada to Great Britain during the past 12 years. In the fiscal year 1920-21 Canada exported a total of 6,579,833 dozen, but since that year, with only a few minor exceptions exports have declined steadily. In 1923-24 the total figure of exports was 270,340 dozen.

While Canadian eggs have always held high reputation on the British market, the relatively higher prices at home, coupled with the adverse exchange rate during recent years, have tended to prevent any volume of exports. The factor which has been most beneficial in the revival of the export trade this year has been the improvement in the exchange rate between Canadian and British funds.

An encouraging feature of the pending export business is that shipments probably will go to Britain from a number of parts of Canada. In the past with certain notable exceptions, most of the export shipments have gone to Britain from Ontario and Quebec. This year, however, there will be a number of shipments from various parts of the western provinces.

Many Women Authors

Good First Novels Even Exceed Those By Men
The Montreal Herald writer of "From The Louvre" says:

"I have seen bookshelves in the establishment or bookstore in Montreal today and you will find, as I have done, that books by women are almost as numerous as books by male authors. I noted the fact to a prominent local bookseller recently who told me that my opinion was confirmed by many of those Canadian authors recently returned from the Old Country."

"There, they said, really good first novels by women seem to be more plentiful than really good first novels by men, though of course there are more fiction writers who really count than there are women writers. But undoubtedly, some of the very finest writers in the world today, and the best sellers in all countries, are women. It has been remarked, however, that some women writers produce one or perhaps two out-standing good books, but do not sustain their success. It is very doubtful if women can approach the very high plane sometimes attained by men writers. But many first novels by women recently have resulted in the sale of 10,000 copies, which is considered a remarkable success."

Women Growing Taller

Average Height Increased By Three Inches Since 1893
The average woman of today is three inches taller than the average woman back in 1893, dietitians meeting at Chicago in conjunction with the American College of Surgeons, were told by Dr. Charles F. Reed, of Elgin, Ill.

Dr. Reed, who is superintendent of the Elgin State Hospital, said he attributed the growth of women to a better knowledge of balanced diets and subsequent lessening of nervous ailments.

It is bad business the surgeons were informed by Dr. Alfred W. Addison of the Mayo Foundation of Rochester, Minn., to correct children at meal time, because it destroys their digestion.

New Propeller Tested

The turbine fin, a novel means of ship propulsion, has been invented by Albert Dear, a dentist, of Melbourne, Australia. It is a new type of propeller, and is said to reduce the amount of waste energy of the usual methods of propelling ships by 50 per cent. It will be fitted to the auxiliary yacht "Olimar" before she starts from Melbourne for Europe.

The Front Page Fliers

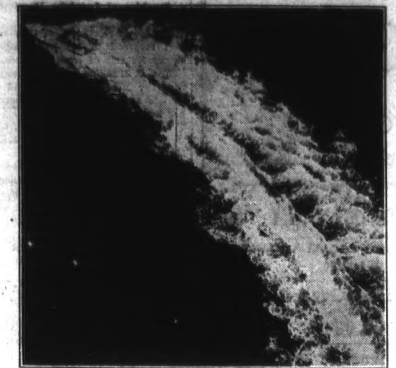

Much of the useless journeys to and fro, the aviating flights included, remind one of Benjamin Franklin's maxim: "To be dexterous in danger is a virtue, but to court danger to show it is a weakness." Yet so long as the editors give front page publicity to every person who hops off into the blue, will the weakness of notoriety appeal to the vain.

Flour Milling Industry

Holds Place Of Third Leading Industry In Dominion

The flour milling industry in Canada is now the third leading industry with pulp and paper holding first place followed by slaughtering and meat packing.

Canadian flour mills now have a capacity far beyond the requirements of the domestic markets. The home market uses only 41,750,000 bushels of wheat for its domestic flour requirements while the requirements of the Canadian flour mills averaged around 67,500,000 bushels for the past few years.

The development of Canadian flour mills is largely accredited to the abundance of readily available water-power. Few of the big milling plants are now dependent upon steam since water-driven electrical equipment has largely supplanted that means of operation.

Four milling is the oldest of all Canadian manufacturing industries and dates back to 1605 when the first permanent Canadian settlement was made by the French at Port Royal, now Annapolis, Nova Scotia.

The substantial export business in wheat and flour from Canada had its inception during the time of the Napoleonic wars in Europe.

Portuguese Woman Trying To Forget

Grief Stricken Carpet Industry

Founded by a mother who was trying to forget her grief over the death of her only child, a carpet industry in Beriz has become one of the most prosperous in Portugal. Four years ago the woman, the wife of a farmer, lost her boy, and to divert her mind she took up carpet making. So popular were the bright colored carpets and rugs which she turned out that soon she was teaching six apprentices. Today she employs 300 women workers and scores of others in minor jobs and in transporting the factory's output. The floor coverings are sold in all parts of the world.

Wheat Exports

87,616,587 Bushels Exported First Six Months Of Year

The export of wheat during the first six months of the present fiscal year, April to September, totalled 87,616,587 bushels, valued at $60,279,040, says a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Although in volume this was 16,081,435 bushels more than the export of the corresponding six months of 1932 the value was only $638,250 less.

The average export price of wheat per bushel in the past six months was 68.7 cents compared with 68.7 cents a year ago. In September the average export price was 75.9 cents, which was 19.2 cents higher than September, 1932, and 20 cents higher than September, 1931.

Deputy Port Warden Records Three Established This Season

Captain Norman Martorelli, deputy port warden at Churchill, in Montreal after inspecting and clearing steamers loading cargo at Canada's northern terminal on Hudson Bay during the harbor's second season, said three records were established at Churchill this season.

The largest cargo ever to be unloaded was brought in by the S.S. Pennsylvania with 1,000 tons of coal and 1,000 tons of general cargo. Four ships were tied up at the wharf at the same time and the first shipment of cattle, honey and lumber left aboard the S.S. Brandon.

"Television is still in the research stage," the Senator said.

Too Much For Him
A small, irate woman "gate crashed" the office of Mayor John Peabees, Hamilton, Ont. She had a tax bill she couldn't understand and Mayor Peabees was to explain it. Two long hours later the mayor came out of his office and said: "I've learned my lesson. I'll never try to explain a tax bill again."

Everything But The Hawk
Ray Barnes, milkman, of Audubon, Iowa, carries a spare tire, a buggy whip and a jack as accessories on his milk wagon. But this is not as strange as it sounds, he explains, because the horse-drawn milk wagon is mounted on a auto chassis with pneumatic tires.

An engineer says the automobile of the future will hold the road at 125 miles an hour as easily as the modern car at forty. Some of today's drivers think the future is here.

"Officer, where do I go to apologize for shooting my husband?"—Everybody's Weekly, London.

Still In Research Stage
Senator the Marchese Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless, predicted in New York that television would never be as important as radio telephony. He arrived from Italy, accompanied by his wife, en route to attend the Marconi Day celebration at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. "Television is still in the research stage," the Senator said.

The Prosperity Of Dominion Depends Upon Prosperity Of Farmers Of Western Canada

Explodes Popular Belief

Sir Leonard Hill States Draughts Do Not Hurt You

Many popular beliefs regarding fresh air and health were exploded by Sir Leonard Hill in his presidential address to the Sanitary Inspectors' Association Conference at Clacton-on-Sea, England.

"Most people still think," said Sir Leonard, referring to ventilation, "that they are tired and made uncomfortable by want of oxygen and excess of carbonic acid in crowded rooms and that the smell of such a room betokens the presence of volatile poison."

"The discomfort in crowded rooms arises not from chemical vitiation of the air but from interference with the loss of body heat and the congestion of the nose and nasal sinuses reflexly produced in sensitive people by infra-red rays, these acting on the skin."

"Relief is obtained by fanning the air and so cooling the skin and this without making any change in the chemical purity of the air."

"The Black Hole of Calcutta means, during eighteen square feet, had two confined 146 people. Nine hours later twenty-three individuals staggered out, the rest were dead."

"We know now that all these people died not from suffocation through want of oxygen, but from heat stroke."

"We have read recently of some forty-three greyhounds travelling in a furniture van and twenty-four dying, and of three valuable leopards dying in their usual travelling boxes when exposed to the sun in hot weather."

"In place of prosecuting such cases the R.S.P.C. might be much better employed in teaching the public to know about the danger of heat stroke. The death of these animals was due to over-heating and not to suffocation, as was supposed at the inquiry."

Sir Leonard said we now know that the chill felt before the heat of fever, was not the cause of the fever but the shivering stage which ushered in infection.

And yet this day children were mistakenly kept indoors in air polluted with microbes for fear of catching cold outside.

Up-To-Date Equipment

Machinery Does Practically All Work On Vatican Farm

Spic and span mechanical equipment—as modern as the present minute—speeds the daily routine of Pope Pius' 136-acre model farm situated close to the villa of the Vatican, his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo, Italy.

Although Pope Pius XI has enjoyed the produce of the farm for several years it was not until this summer that he was able to pay his first visit to the place. The Pontiff expressed the greatest interest and delight over the agricultural and dairy developments and asked innumerable questions.

Machinery does practically all the work on the farm. Under the administration of Commendatore Emilio Boncompagni, director of the Pope's summer estate, and superintendent Mario Casali, the whole farm requires a permanent staff of only five hands.

"Masterpieces" and "Roses," the prize cows, need only to exert a slight pressure of their broad muscles on a device to obtain all the fresh water they desire. Their lives are like that throughout the daily work of a farm system which provides Vatican City with 70 gallons of fresh milk and cream, 300 fresh eggs and many bushels of fruit and vegetables daily.

The dairy herd consists of 27 brown Swiss cows.

Creamery Butter

Figures Showing Percentage Of Production For Each Province

With respect to the total output of creamery butter in Canada in 1931 and 1932, the relative position of each province is shown in the following statement of percentages. The figures for 1931 being placed within brackets:

Ontario, 35 (34) per cent; Quebec, 30 (31) per cent; Alberta, 10 (10) per cent; Saskatchewan, 0 (8) per cent; Manitoba, 9 (9) per cent; Nova Scotia, 3 (3) per cent; British Columbia, 2 (3) per cent; and New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, each 1 (1) per cent.

A Handsome Surplus
Indications are that the British Chancellor of the Exchequer will have a handsome surplus to report in his next Budget speech. This is explained by the fact that during the first half of the year revenue increased by 47,208,534, and expenditures decreased by 142,000,000. Attention of other Governments is directed to what may be done in the way of economizing in hard times.—Toronto Globe.

LACOMBE AND DISTRICT NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cleveland are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter at Lacombe Hospital last week.

Mr. Albert Northcott, of Calgary has just returned to his home after a successful run of work this fall.

Mrs. O. Hodgkins, who has been visiting her father, J. O. Todd and other friends and relatives has returned to her home at Black Diamond.

Mrs. T. McLean and Miss A. Cleveland spent Monday last with Mr. and Mrs. G. Waldron, of Calgary.

Mr. F. Trapp and Mrs. Henderson, of Central; Jack Smith of Lacombe, Jack Jeffries of Milton and Mrs. P. Dinwoodie, of Stettler visited at the B. McLean home, Sunday last.

Mr. David Hill, Jr., of Torville has just finished building a fine new barn to replace the old one that was destroyed by fire.

Miss N. Shanks, of Torville, spent a pleasant day last week, with Mrs. Jack Rinkens of Fairview.

Mrs. and Mrs. Nunn are visiting with Mrs. Clara Gale of Milton. It is reported that they are renting the B. Gale farm. Mrs. Nunn, formerly Lily Gale, who was raised in this district is certainly welcomed back by all her neighbors and friends.

The dance held at Milton on the 27th of October was fairly well attended and it report a good time. The rules was a little scarce as the married ladies did not turn out as they usually do. Come on girls, what is wrong? Can't you take a cake as well as mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Garlick, who are running the Post Office at Chigwell, are moving into the Hiley Building as they are rather crowded in the old building.

Miss Margaret Olson and Edna Norris, of Chigwell, who are attending Lacombe High School spent the week end with their parents at Chigwell.

Margaret Hill, "certainly" Miss M. Graham on Saturday to a musical evening.

Miss Marie Todd spent the past week with Mrs. B. McLean.

Mr. George Johnston, a popular young bachelor, of Central has purchased a new car. Now all the girls are making go-go eyes at George.

"CABIN IN THE COTTON"

Get Bartholomew into patched overalls, surround him with simple country life and give him a story of people close to the soil, and you'll inevitably have a good picture. This one adds further substantiation to that rule. It's the kind of stuff he has always done best, but the material goes a little farther than that. It's an honest-to-goodness story, gripping and grim, and had become one of Russia and Ukrainian peasants instead of American, the art critics would turn handsprings. The story has Bartholomew as a boy of poor white trash of the South, then when there is nothing truer nor poorer, and, by the way, these southern types are picked with such fidelity and played with such sincerity that you can almost smell the perspiration in the cabin in the cotton. There is not a flaw in the supporting cast, which is too long to mention individually, but Bette Day is certainly deserving a tumble for a sensational performance.

All in all, this is one of the best of the Bartholomew pictures.

Show starts Friday and Saturday at 8:15; Saturday 7:30 and 9:15.

Coming: "College Humor", Nov. 9, 10 and 11.

Mariene Dietrich in "Song of Songs", Nov. 16, 17 and 18.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake up your Liver! No Colonic necessary! For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour its constant flow of bile into your blood, every day. Without that bile, you feel weak, nervous, tired, discouraged. It's in the body. General weakness. Now can you expect to clear up a situation like this completely with new liver-cleansing pills, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or shaving cream, or soap? They don't wake up your liver.

J. G. Robertson Thinks Hogs Could Be Fed At Churchill

Possibility for the successful feeding of feeder hogs at Churchill, utilizing the screenings from the elevator, and the swill from the cook houses, is seen by J. G. Robertson, Saskatchewan livestock commissioner.

Recently Mr. Robertson returned from Churchill where he was interested in the loading of the first shipment of livestock by the Hudson Bay route.

He found the stockyards at that point very satisfactory, and large enough to accommodate up to 500 head of cattle.

He speaks well of the speed with which the loading operations were conducted at Churchill.

There are no cattle of any description at Churchill, no sheep, no hogs and no poultry. There are six horse-drawn motor trucks, but no motor cars.

Because of this lack of livestock, and owing to the abundance of screenings, Mr. Robertson sees an opportunity for shipping in feeder hogs with a view to supplying the residents of the town with fresh pork. The present population of the town is about 400.

Treasure Seeking Company Officially Listed In Canada Gazette

Incorporation of a company to seek for hidden treasure is given official notice in the Canada Gazette. The Canadian Oak Island Treasure Company, Ltd., with capital stock of $150,000 and head office at Victoria, B.C., has been incorporated.

Its purpose was defined in the official notice, as follows: "To locate, seek for and extricate from under or in the vicinity of Oak Island in the province of Nova Scotia, in the Dominion of Canada, buried or hidden treasure, money (gold, silver, copper), minerals, metals, coins, precious stones, jewels, trinkets, bullion, ornaments, or any other useful or valuable objects."

A Very Common Error

Canada Not So Backward In Aviation As Visitors Think

When Amy Molison said the other day that aviation in Canada was apparently not making very rapid strides, she had undoubtedly fallen into the error that has been made by other visitors.

So far as passenger service in the more settled parts of the country are concerned the criticism was justified, for in that department Canada is behind many other countries.

But that does not mean that the Dominion is not making good use of aircraft, for it ignores altogether the rapid development in commercial aviation in the pioneer districts where this form of transportation is playing a magnificent part in the opening up of new mining areas, in survey work, forest fire fighting and similar activities.

Canadian Airways Limited has recently issued a circular which shows the growth of commercial flying on Canada's frontiers.

The company states that in the first eight months of this year it has broken all records in the transportation by air of mining equipment and general supplies in the northern territories.

In "bush work," Canadian Airways alone carried 1,474,704 pounds of freight during the eight months following routes: Charlottetown-Magdalen Islands; Moncton-Charlottetown, Quebec-Seven Islands-Charlottetown, St. Louis-Narrow Lake, Lac du Bonnet-Central Manitoba, Mackenzie River-Winnipeg-Fort Smith, Peace River-Vermilion, and Vancouver-Victoria.

When it is remembered that these figures do not take into consideration any other commercial aviation concerns throughout the country, it must be admitted that Canada is not so backward as regards aviation as appears on the surface.—Peterboro Examiner.

Reliable statistics show that over a period of ten years, 407,000 fires in Canada have been extinguished, valued at over $402,890,192 or an average of over $40,000 per year, and over 8,667 persons were seriously injured by fire. These figures do not take into consideration our losses in property and lives caused by forest fires.

In the year 1932, there were reported in Canada, 47,553 fires with a property loss of $1,193,515.00. That, however, was not the total cost of fire. To it must be added the cost of fire extinguishing, insurance protection, and the cost of maintaining municipal fire departments and water works.

These items, Canada last year incurred an unproductive expenditure of over $100,000,000 through fire, or roughly $200 for every minute of the year. Capitalized at five per cent, this represents the gigantic sum of over $2,000,000,000 which is only a little less than our National Debt. If devoted to progressive construction instead of being wastefully dissipated, such a sum would go far to wipe the anamolous mark of the social and economic ills from which we are suffering at the present time.

Reliable statistics show that over 80 per cent of the fires which occur originate either directly or indirectly through inexcusable ignorance and neglect, and are therefore preventable.

And that the exercise of reasonable prudence and care would reduce the losses by fire in Canada to the comparatively insignificant losses in other countries.

While we spend millions yearly to equip and maintain fire fighting departments for the purpose of putting out fires after they start, and our fire departments in percentage of activity are admittedly superior to those of Europe, only a few thousands are sent to prevent fires from starting.

It would seem as if we were attacking the problem from the wrong end to a great extent. The best time to deal with a fire danger is before a fire starts, that is, by the adoption of such preventive measures as will make it almost impossible for a fire of any consequence to develop.

How the problem has been largely solved in Europe and as a result very low insurance rates prevail in European countries.

It must be borne in mind, that fire insurance rates for a country or community are based on fire losses previously incurred in that country or community. The fire losses govern the amount the insurance company must collect from the public by fire insurance premiums, and the higher the losses from fire, the higher the insurance premiums paid by the public.

It is gratifying to note the success which has attended the Fire Prevention Campaign of the Government in the last four years. In 1929 Saskatchewan lost by fire, exclusive of forest and forest fires, the sum of $4,859,670. In 1932, the Saskatchewan fire loss amounted to $1,673,741 or about 34 per cent of the loss sustained in 1929. In 1929 there were only three provinces in Canada where the fire losses were greater per capita than in Saskatchewan. In 1932 Saskatchewan fire losses amounted to $5.60 for every man, woman and child in the Province. By 1932, the Saskatchewan fire losses were reduced to $1.92 per capita, as compared with $5.60 per capita in 1929, and Saskatchewan occupies the proud position of having the lowest per capita fire loss of any province in Canada. We believe that our Fire Prevention Schools, our Fire Prevention Campaigns through the schools and homes of the province, in which preventive work Saskatchewan led all the provinces of Canada, has contributed very materially to this marked reduction.

The results of our Fire Prevention Campaign and the tightening up of our fire inspection work has brought a great deal of good to the public satisfaction to those engaged in fire prevention and to the Fire Insurance Underwriters. I desire, as minister in charge of the Fire Prevention Act, to thank all who have taken part in this campaign which has produced such a great reduction in fire losses. Commissioner and the officials of my department engaged in this work, the Fire Chiefs, the School Trustees, teachers and the pupils of the schools and also the parents who so heartily co-operated with the children in their study of fire hazards and how to prevent them.

In addition to the fire losses already referred to we have suffered loss through forest fires and here again the Fire Prevention Act has been of great service. In the year 1930 the control of forest fires was under the Dominion Government, Provincial cooperation was under the Provincial Government, and the results of the Fire Prevention Act have been most satisfactory.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful commercial artist, and Peter Amos, a struggling sculptor, meet in an art class and fall in love. She is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family, but is not to share in their fortune when she comes of age. They are faced with the problem of "marriage or career" and Camilla does not want to let Peter down when he has so much promise as a sculptor. At an art school dance, Gus Matson, Peter's roommate, who is jealous of Peter's success, takes Camilla out on the lawn to tell her "something she should know about Peter."

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XIII.

"Well," began Gus, exclaiming the smoke of his cigarette, noisily, and turning toward Camilla. "You sure do get to know a guy when you live with him. And I'm telling you now that Peter is not good enough for a sweet little kid like you. He has a dozen shirts after him all the time, like the moths around that light over there. Why? Because he kids 'em along and makes each one think she's the berries for him. I don't know how he pays his way through school? On the money he gets from rich dames like you! Has he touched you for a payment yet?"

"You are despicable," Camilla told him in a deadly calm voice. "I don't believe a word you are saying and I refuse to listen any longer!"

"Oh, yeah?" his laugh was ugly.

"I'll bet you are beautiful to look at when you're mad like that. I told you I'm crazy about you and I mean it. If Peter is good enough for you, so am I," and before Camilla was aware of what was happening, his arms were holding her like a vise and his mouth was seeking hers while she struggled violently to free herself.

From behind them, a doubled hand struck out swiftly against the side of Gus' head and sent him sprawling up on the ground. At the same time, another arm grasped Camilla's shoulders and prevented her falling from the force of the blow that separated them.

"Did he hurt you, dear?" Peter was breathing hard, with anger and exertion.

"No, but I hope you have hurt him." She was trembling, but with anger. "Not because of me but for what he was saying about you."

"I heard enough," Peter said curtly, "which doesn't matter." But I'm sorry I am responsible for introducing you to such a bum."

He walked around the bench and stood above Gus, who rolled over then and put his hand tentatively to his bruised jaw. Peter assured himself that his victim was only stunned, stood up and adjusted his own tie and clothes, and took Camilla's arm.

"Shall we go back to the party and forget this unfortunate affair? Glad I came out here to look for you. I missed you and had already lost one dance with you, so I suspected something was wrong. He was trying to dam the incident and sound casual, but his voice still shook uncertainly. 'I know you wouldn't voluntarily cut the dances you had promised me.'"

"But, Peter, he said those terrible things about you!" She was still trembling with her own resentment, and wondered how Peter could dismiss the thing so calmly.

"But you don't believe them, darling?" he asked quietly.

"Of course not!"

"Then, that's all that matters. You know, the world is so many people in it that there just have to be some like that—ungrateful and jealous and malicious. But time is too precious to waste even thinking about them. From now on, we'll just forget Gus. People like that just hang themselves with their own rope. He can shift for himself, as he did before I took pity on him. At least, that's one load off my mind!"

"Do you mean," Camilla was incredulous, "that you have been keeping Gus?"

"Most of the time, he shrugged indifferently.

"And he could say that!" she exclaimed with dismay. "Well, this world surprises me a little more every day—the people, I mean."

"Sure, the world is fine. It's the people—regular hog-podge. Interesting though," he added thoughtfully. "Every good or bad surprise I have over human nature makes me feel a little bit wiser and more able to cope with it in general. As Tonyson said, 'I am a part of all that I have met.'"

"Oh, Peter, you're so fine yourself," she told him with loving admiration, "that you can find some good in everything."

He pressed her hand that was tucked into his arm, as they walked slowly back to the auditorium. "That's because you think so, honey," he told her with characteristic modesty.

The last balloon had escaped ceilingward, many of them were deflated and had dropped to the floor which was strewn with confetti, serpentine dangled limply in mid-air, and the orchestra had crooned goodnight.

"Of course, but all of that is in our future, dear, and for people whose situation is different from ours. I'm talking about us, now. Why should you grieve and worry over not being able to provide for me, when you should be giving the best of yourself to your work toward success?"

"But what else can I do?" Now that I've found you, I can't forget you—not for a minute. Oh, Camilla, I need you so—"

He stopped abruptly to kiss her. "How can we go on like this—for years?" his voice yearned.

"We can't," she whispered, "and we'll not."

"What do you mean?" he demanded.

Peter Was Breathing Hard From Anger And Exertion.

Again, they were walking through the park, arm in arm. It was that witching hour when the young moon rises high and gloriously, when the air is sweetly caressing, and the sounds of the night whisper and echo mysteriously like conspirators of romance. The moonlight stretched a silver path across the lagoon, down which tiny ripples rode gleefully with the breeze. Somewhere, a pair of birds had just finished the building of their nest and twittered sleepily, and an adventurous frog gave a frightened croak and leaped into the water with a thudding splash.

Camilla chuckled softly. "Poor thing! Perhaps he was on his way to see his girl friend and we frightened him so he never will have the courage to try again."

"Too late, anyway, to start out adventuring," Peter laughed. "He should be taking her home, as I am—and wish I didn't have to," he added softly, drawing her closer with the arm that held her.

"Don't wish that more than I do, Peter!"

"Precious! But that's not the worst of it. Lord knows how many more years I'll have to be taking you home and leaving you," he said.

"Not years, darling!"

"It will be, unless things happen a lot faster than I have any right to expect."

"But why do things have to happen—before we can have each other?"

"So I'll be able to take care of you, of course. Sometimes," he sighed heavily, "I'm afraid that never will be."

"Why, you dear, foolish thing, you talk as if I were going to be a burden to you!"

"Never that!" he protested. "But, you know—"

"I know nothing about letting you take care of me, Peter, this is a day of women's freedom, you know, freedom from the yoke of tutelage that makes them burdens to men. You don't have to take care of me, just because you love me."

"And that is just why I do want to take care of you. That is the test of a man's love, whether or not he wants to cherish and protect a woman. It's all right for women to be free and independent—free to escape from the guardianship of men if they wish. But when a woman falls in love, she goes right back to the beginning of things again—service and subordination and dependence. She can't escape it. And the man who loves her in the right way, wants to take care of her, to endow her with his worldly goods. It is part of his vanity."

New Kind Of Sky-Writing

Partially Frozen Smoke Makes Messages Legible For Longer Period

Successful tests of messages in smoke from the face of the sky have been made in England and it is believed that they soon will be a familiar feature of daily life. The airplanes producing these messages work at a height of 20,000 feet so that the pilots have to wear electrically heated suits. The intense cold at this altitude partially freezes the smoke as it comes in contact with the air, and this makes the messages legible for a longer period than usual. Also at 20,000 feet atmospheric disturbances are less. Night sky-writing by means of a new searchlight projector throws colored patterns on the clouds.

"THESE HARD TIMES"

"The hard times and scarcity of money makes it more important than ever to economize. One way I can do on clothes is by renewing the color of faded or out-of-style dresses, coats, stockings, and underwear. For dyeing, or tinting, I always use Diamond Dyes. They are the most economical ones for far better results than any other. They never fade, never streak, never run. They go on smoothly and evenly, and when the dye is even a ten year dye older. Another thing, Diamond Dyes never take the life out of cloth or leave it limp as some dyes do. They deserve to be called 'the world's finest dyes'!"

An Anti-Bandit Gadget

Invention May Lead To Lower Insurance For Cars

Cheaper insurance for motor cars is likely to be one result of an anti-bandit gadget invented by ex-Chief Inspector Wensley, of Scotland Yard. The device, which is being manufactured in the Midlands, consists of a steel-plate shutter bearing in bold letters the word "Parked." It pulls down like a blind behind the windshield and automatically becomes locked.

A car thief would have to use strong tools to remove it. Prominent insurance brokers and companies have decided that motorists using the shutter will be able to secure a reduction of 15 per cent. of the premiums for all private cars and commercial vehicles.

It would operate the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for almost a full season, with employment for 80 musicians, and a winter-long entertainment of high character for the community.

It would more than sustain the Detroit Civic Opera for a decade. It would virtually assure Detroit of a Children's Theatre for all time. What splendid things could be done with $184,068.

Foot Guards Won Out

Regiment Of King George Can Now Ignore Traffic Light

King George of England's proud regiment of foot guards has just won a big peace-time battle without firing a shot.

Maybe the victory will not be chalked up on the regiment's official battle-roll, but all the same the guards are very jubilant, for their conquest means that in future they will not have to obey London's intricate system of traffic signal lights when on the march to the capital.

The first skirmish occurred two years ago when traffic lights were first coming into use on a big scale here, and an impatient light in Regent St. decimated one of the regiment's proudest battalions.

Guardsmen were up in arms at this affront. Not even Napoleon was able to cut up the guards, they said in effect, and they saw no reason why a little red light should be able to do it without protest.

Then a few weeks later another battalion lost its drum major through another warlike act on the part of a traffic light. The drum major marched on proudly, twirling his ceremonial staff. Imagine his dismay when he discovered he had become a mere unit of one, that the rest of his colleagues had had their advance stemmed by a mere red lens.

The last straw came when the police commissioner announced he approved the erection of 440 traffic lights at crossroads throughout the capital.

Declaring that so many lights would mean that the guards would be confined to barracks forever, the military authorities took the matter in hand. First they were furnished with maps showing how they could avoid routes in which red lights were operating, but this involved gruelling marches.

Then they began by giving 24 hours' notice of their intention to march, which smoothed away many of the difficulties.

Now they have scored a final victory. In future a traffic officer will be stationed at every signal light when the guards are out marching, and the officer will have orders to disconnect the signals until the troops have passed.

Never again will His Majesty's guards be cut up.

Expert's Precautions

For Mushroom Hunters

Some Don'ts Which Will Help In Avoiding Danger

A list of precautions for mushroom hunters has been issued by M. C. Strausser, assistant pathologist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, in reply to numerous queries for "a simple and sure way for distinguishing edible species."

"None of the commonly supposed sure tests for the poisonous group, popularly called 'toadstools,' are reliable," Strausser said. These include the silver spoon test, the peeling test, and the color test. He recommended the following precautions:

"Never collect for food purposes mushrooms in the extremely early stages of development.

"Eliminate all mushrooms which have bulbous and cup-like structures at the base of the stems.

"Avoid mushrooms which change color when bruised.

"Do not collect worm-eaten, over-mature specimens.

"Beware of all mushrooms having a bitter or acid taste. (The tasting should be confined to a small portion of the cap and this portion should not be eaten.)

"Reject all species which secrete a milky or colored juice.

"Discard all specimens which are tough and leathery, and especially those with a thin, brightly colored cap."

Enforcing The Law

Police In England Do Not Exempt Distinguished Officers

English papers report an interesting automobile incident at Chertsey, 22 miles from London. A man was driving a motor hearse when a car came out from the grounds of a house nearby and there was a slight collision. The car drove off. The police investigated.

It was found that the car belonged to a baronet whose home was in London. He explained that the collision was so slight that he had driven off after asking the driver of the hearse what he was doing, and had not bothered reporting the accident.

Whether the policeman said he was sorry, is not reported. Apparently, however, he failed to realize that the baronet was a "distinguished visitor" and a "responsible citizen." No fear seems to have assailed him that baronets would cease to drive through Chertsey if this offender was treated as an ordinary law breaker.

The upshot was that the baronet appeared by counsel before the Chertsey magistrate and pleaded not guilty. He was fined 19s. 6d.

Which seems, after all, quite a reasonable way of enforcing the law if the law is to be respected.—Daily Telegram.

Little Helps For This Week

"As we have therefore opportunity, let us do good unto all men."—Galatians 6:10.

I ask Thee for a thoughtful love, Through constant watching wise. To me only clad with joyful smiles, And to wipe the weeping eyes. And a heart at leisure with itself, To soothe and sympathize.

—A. L. Waring.

Surely none are so full of cares or so poor in gifts that to them also, waiting patiently and trustfully on God for His daily commands, He will not give direct ministry for him, increasing according to their strength and desire. There is so much to be right in the world, there are so many to be led and helped and comforted, that we must continually come in contact with such in our daily life. Let us only clad with joyful smiles, and to wipe the weeping eyes. And a heart at leisure with itself, To soothe and sympathize.

CHICKEN SHORTCAKE

2 cups pastry flour (or 1 1/2 cups of bread flour)
3 teaspoons Magic Baking Powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
1 egg 1/2 cup water

Sift dry ingredients; add shortening and mix in thoroughly with a steel fork; add beaten egg and sufficient water to make soft dough. Roll out on floured board. Cut out with large floured biscuit cutter, or half fill greased muffin rings which have been placed on greased baking pan. Bake in hot oven at 475° F. about 12 minutes. Split and butter while hot, and fill with hot creamed chicken. Makes 6 shortcakes.

PEACE—AT ANY PRICE

The public will heave a sigh of relief at the news that the railways of the country are not to be tied up by a strike. They will also, and should, appreciate the sacrifice the railway employees are making in accepting the compromise cut of five per cent. by which that national calamity is averted.

The railwaymen have already suffered a cut of ten per cent. in their base rate of pay, contrary to their contracts. But their loss this time has imposed a heavier reduction than that. Shipmen have been working five days a week only, for many months. Engineers have been set back and are firing. Conductors have been set back and are braking. Thousands of men, regularly employed four years ago, have been dropped from the rolls. The further cut of five per cent. in the base rate of those who are still on the job will be felt in their standard of living. Their willingness to accept the added hardship should be publicly recognized.

The cut will in turn be felt in the business turnover of the stores at railway points and over the country generally. It is good news that the railways are to continue to operate. It is bad news that the buying power of thousands of men scattered across Canada is to be cut still further than it has been. That will not help recovery. Wage-cutting never did that and never can.

THE PROBLEM OF POOR LAND

"I sincerely hope the day will come when 50,000,000 acres of poorer, plow land in the United States will be required from use. The men on these poorer areas in Northwestern United States and certain parts of the arid west have been backing an impossible situation. Their plow land might well be turned into grass or trees. These things cannot be worked out rapidly but they will have to come either as a result of planning or as a result of blood and misery." H. A. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture for the United States
